LMC 3843: Archives, Media, and Materiality
Fifth Blog Post: On Fun Home and Nox

Due on Thursday, November 1st at 11:59pm.

Your fifth blog post assignment is both easy and hard: choose one page (or a significant set of frames) from Fun Home or Nox and perform a “close reading” of that page. If at all possible, include an image of the page in your post. Scanning the page is ideal, but taking a picture of the page with your cell phone is fine. In either case, please also include a complete citation so that it can be referenced.

Some questions you might consider:

- What is conveyed through the text?
- What is conveyed through the image?
- How do text and image work together to do more than one alone?
- Whose perspective is shown in the framing of the image?
- Whose voices (if any) speak in the frame?
- Do perspective and voice align?
- How does the size of the panel(s) convey additional meaning?
- How does the order of the panel(s) convey additional meaning?
- What happens in the frame? What happens out of the frame?
- How are other forms of media represented in the frame?
- How is materiality represented in the frame?
- Other questions to be raised in class.